FOR KILLING A DOG

'Sport," an Irish Setter, Pointed a Bird on the Car Tracks Despite the Gong.

WAS FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH.

Prize Thoroughbred Belonging to M. A. Klein Was Noted for "Playing on the Piano and Singing."

Because "Sport," an Irish setter dog, belonging to M. A. Klein of No. 2807 Accomac street, was too tenaclous on a point, he lost his life, and judgment for $200 was entered yesterday in Judge Taylor's division of the Circuit Court against the St. Louis Transit Company for the dog's death.

On May 23, 1902, "Sport" discovered some birds on the street near his master's home and immediately assumed the attitude taken by hunting dogs when they discover game. When a bird is sighted the dog stops, and remains standing with one of his fore paws raised and his eyes fixed on the bird. This is called pointing.

"Sport," like many other hunting dogs, was very stanch on point, or hard to be made to leave his position until the game had been disposed of. Unfortunately for 'Sport" two things oc-

Unfortunately for "Sport" two things oc-curred in his case. One was that when he sighted the birds he was on the car track. The other was that a California avenue car was bearing down upon him. "Sport" either did not see the car or, see-ing it, heeded it not. The remainder of "Sport's" life was con-tained in the following questions put by Attorney J. Carter Carstens to the motor-man:

"SPORT" A PIANO PLAYER. "Did you not hear a grinding and breaking

Klein brought suit in Justice Hanley's court for damages about two months after "Sport's" remains had been laid to rest. A change of venue was taken to Justice Walker's court, which is now presided over by Justice Griffin. From there it was taken to Justice Billhartz's court and back to Justice Griffin's court and then back to Justice Spaulding's court, where it was tried

Oceanic July First. Harry B. Hawes and August A. Busch will sail for Europe on the steamer Oceanic on July 1. They will land at Queenstown and make a hurried tour of Ireland, England,

Scotland, Germany, Italy and France, re-turning to America in about six weeks.

While in Germany they expect to visit the castle of Adolphus Busch on the Rhine.

Mr. Hawes has been contemplating this trip for several months, his decision to go abroad for his vacation coming after the arduous work of the recent campaign.

Justice Spaulding's court, where it was tried.

Klein placed "Sport's" value at $300 and asked for $500 punitive damages in addition. The evidence did not warrant punitive damages and Attorney Carstens amended by eliminating the claim for punitive compensation. The jury, however, returned a verdict for $450 and the Transit Company appealed. The evidence showed that "Sport" possessed other admirable qualities besides being a stanch pointer. One of these was his ability to play on the plano.

At the behest of his master's wife he would take a position before the instrument and pound on the keys with his pews and howl in accompaniment. He appeared to enjoy the melody or medley, and there was no doubt but that it was enjoyed by the children of the heighborhood, who would gather on the payement to hear him.

next Saturday, to vote on the local option question.

The Citizens', or "dry" party, as it is dubbed, is straining every point to carry the election Saturday and drive out the saloons for the next three years. A mass meeting was held last night, addressed by Geo. W. Taussig and others, and another will take place Friday night, at which Father Coffey will be the principal speaker. The opposing ticket is not making an open campaign. Their apparent inactivity is regarded as ominous by the opposition, hence the offer of $1.00.

Petitions for saloon licenses, to run one year, are now pending before the Board of Aldermen. The leaders of the Citizens' ticket maintain that the licenses can be revoked if they are granted, provided the local option carries.

EXECUTORS ARE PROTECTED. Cannot Be Garnisheed for Lega-

SAYS HE PREVENTED MAN FROM COMMITTING SUICIDE.

Edward Berger Claims to Have Saved the Life of a Stranger Who Gave the Name of Brockman.

Edward Berger of De Hodiamont claims to have prevented a man from committing suicide in Lamb's quarry yesterday morning about 3 o'clock. The quarry is located on the Olive street road, north of Delmas Garden.

Berger was returning from a dance, when, he says, he heard a boy calling for help. Running to the place whence the cry came, he says, a youth about 16 years old was trying to prevent a man about 20 years old from jumping into the quarry, which contains about twenty feet of water. Berger grabbed the man and walked him to the transfer junction of the Suburban at De Hoddamont, from where he sent him home. He claims the man said he wanted to die; that his name was Brockman; that he was employed in Venice and lived at No. 1250 North King's highway.

Uriah, Percy and Charles Brockman are the names of three young men who live at the King's highway number. Uriah works in Venice. He was not at home late yesterday afternoon, but his mother scouted the idea that he was the man mentioned by Berger. She said she did not know where her son went Sunday night, nor what time he came in, but that he was home yesterday morning for breakfast.

Percy Brockman was at home and said he knew nothing about the occurrence. Charles Brockman works on North Third street. Mrs. Brockman thinks some one used her son's name.
